DISTRIBUTION OF PRIVATE PHILANTHROPIC GIVING IN FLORIDA

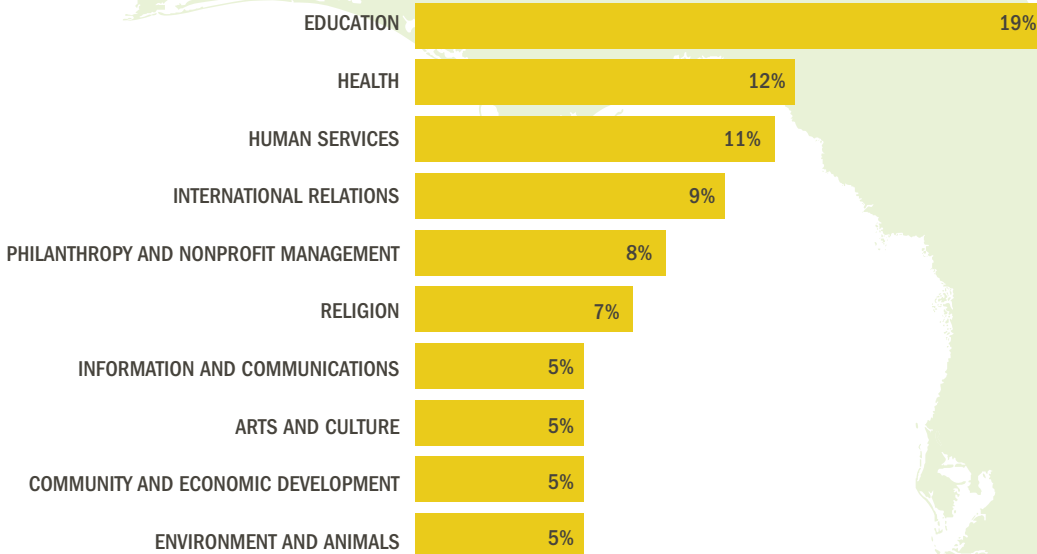

Foundations represent only one source of charitable support. In Florida, living individuals gave $13 billion in 2013—nearly nine times the amount provided by private foundations that year. Another important source of charitable giving in Florida was bequests (charitable donations made at death through a will). Charitable bequests from Floridians totaled $1.9 billion in 2013, accounting for 11 percent of total charitable contributions in the state.
